

The Winner

The Burcham Stable Innovations

The Burcham's new design embraces the site's unique history, re-using the former 1918 Wrigley's Gum Factory building as residential apartments, then adding two new four and five storey apartment buildings, comprising 99 apartments in total across the three buildings.

The interiors, also designed by Allen Jack+Cottier, blend the industrial heritage of the building with the late 20s early 30s character of its architecture, while making the most of the original features.

The spaces inside the existing building are kept 'raw' with polished concrete floors, exposed high concrete ceilings, unusual and elegant 'mushroom' capital columns and abundant light.

From the judges: "Stunning, innovative and a wonder of light and space. This is what sustainable design should be all about."

The Shortlist

Italianate House
Renato D'Ettorre Architects

